8 Voted that the Representation proposed in said 6th Article is also exceptionable as it will produce an unwieldy Assembly—

Voted that in a free republic where the legislative body is composed of an house or houses of representatives if each member of the republic has equal influence in the election of the representatives the expence of the legislative body ought to be defrayed out of the public treasure

9 Voted that the mode of election of Senators pointed out in the constitution is exceptionable—

10 Voted that the rights of conscience & the security of person & property each member of the state is entitled to are not ascertained and defined in the constitution with a precision sufficient to limit the legislative power & therefore that the 13th article of the constitution is exceptionable

Voted that the 15th Article is exceptionable, because the Numbers that constitute a Quorum in the house of Representatives & Senate are too small.

2. Voted That a bill of rights clearly ascertaining and defining the rights of conscience & that security of person & property which every member in the State hath a right to expect from the supreme power thereof ~~be fixed~~ ought to be settled & established previous to the ratification of any constitution for the State —

3. Voted that the Executive power in any State ought not to have any share or voice in ~~framing~~ the legislative power in framing the laws, & therefore that the 2nd Article of the Constitution is liable to exception —

4. Voted that ~~the~~ any man who is chosen Govr. ought to be qualified in point of property — ~~that~~ but that the qualification therefor mentioned in the 3d Article of the const." is not high en? nor is the same qualification directed to be ascertained on ~~fixed~~ principles ~~as~~ ~~it of the fluctuation of the value of money~~ as it ought to be on acct. the value of the fluctuation of money & the increase of property —

5. Voted that in every free republican constitution where the legislative power is vested in an house or houses of representatives each member of the society ought to be equally represented

6. Voted That the mode of representation proposed in the 6th article of the constitution is not so equal a representation as can reasonably be devised —

7. Voted therefore that the mode of Representation in said 6th Article is exceptionable —